CONTRIBUTORS

The three papers appearing in this issue are from the 1973-74 Harris Franklin Rail Lectures, held in conjunction with the annual meeting of the United Methodist Commission on Archives and History at Garrett Theological Seminary, October 29-31, 1973.

WINTHROP S. HUDSON, James B. Colgate professor of the history of Christianity at Colgate Rochester/Bexley Hall/Crozer Seminaries and professor of history at the University of Rochester, is the author of eight books, including Nationalism and Religion (1970) and American Protestantism (1961). He earned his B.A. degree from Kalamazoo College, a B.D. from Colgate Rochester Divinity School, and the Ph.D. from the University of Chicago.

K. JAMES STEIN, academic dean of Garrett-Evangelical Theological Seminary in Evanston, was at the time of the Rail Lectures the president of Evangelical Theological Seminary, Naperville. Since that time the two seminaries have united. Dr. Stein received a B.A. degree from Westmar College, the B.D. degree from Evangelical Theological Seminary, and the S.T.M. and Th.D. degrees from Union Theological Seminary.

WILLIAM J. McCUTCHEON, professor of religious studies and chairman of the religious studies department at Beloit College, has lectured and written widely about subjects related to the history of The United Methodist Church. He received the Ph.D. degree from Yale University.

COVER
Oak Island Church, San Antonio, Texas, is Registered Methodist Historic Site No. 1. It was built under the leadership of John W. DeVilbiss in 1872 on land donated by Jesse Applewhite, and stands some fifteen miles south of the Bexar County Courthouse.
