"A most valuable selection of materials. . . ."

—James Packer

An anthology of some of the best English spiritual writing in the age of the Great Evangelical Revival, this book is an unprecedented gathering of representative witnesses to the work of the Spirit in the eighteenth century.

Emphasizing complete shorter texts, the book crosses denominational lines, including spiritual writings from Isaac Watts, Philip Doddridge, Elizabeth Rowe, William Law, Christopher Smart, John and Charles Wesley, George Whitefield, John Fletcher, John Newton, William Cowper, Hannah More, and William Wilberforce. The works range from sermons and tracts to thoughtful meditative devotional pieces, hymns, poetry, and pastoral counsel on every aspect of the inner life from daily prayer to the most practical consequences of Gospel obedience.

Through these selections the reader will recognize that, then as now, the real worker of revival is the Holy Spirit. As is always true of human instruments, these writers were "not that Light, but sent to bear witness to the Light." In that they were willing to be instruments, it may be said of them, as it was of John the Baptist, that they become as "a burning and a shining light" to their own and subsequent generations.
