THE Arminian Magazine:
CONSISTING OF EXTRACTS
AND
ORIGINAL TREATISES
ON Universal Redemption.

VOL. I.
FOR THE YEAR 1778.

LONDON:
Printed by J. Fry & Co. in Queen-Street:
AND SOLD AT THE FOUNDERY, NEAR UPPER-MOORFIELDS, AND BY THE BOOKSELLERS IN TOWN AND COUNTRY.
CONTENTS

Contributors ................................................................. 66
Editor’s Note ................................................................. 67

A God-Sent Movement: Methodism, Contraception, and the Protection of the Methodist Family, 1870-1968 by Ashley Boggan ................................................................. 68

Prophet and Profit: John Wesley, Publishing, and the Arminian Magazine by Brian Shetler ................................................................. 85

“Look to the rock from which you were hewn . . . .”: The United Methodist Story in its Heritage Landmarks by GCAH Staff ................................................................. 101

2012 General Conference Newly Approved Heritage Landmarks:
The College of West Africa, Monrovia, Liberia ......................... 113
Mary Johnston Hospital, Manila, Philippines .......................... 116
Old Mutare Mission, Mutare, Zimbabwe ............................... 118
Newtown Indian United Methodist Church, Okmulgee, OK ...... 120

Book Review ................................................................. 125

Copyright 2015, General Commission on Archives and History, The United Methodist Church

Methodist History is included in Religious and Theological Abstracts,
Historical Abstracts and America: History and Life
ATLA Religion Database
CONTRIBUTORS

ASHLEY BOGGAN is a third year PhD Student at Drew University studying American Religious History with concentrations in Wesley/Methodist Studies and Women/Gender Studies. She is based in Chicago, Illinois, and is an intern with the Connectional Table of the United Methodist Church, working with their Human Sexuality Task Force. Her dissertation will examine the complex relationship of The Methodist Church, The United Methodist Church, and human sexuality from 1939-1972.

BRIAN SHETLER is a Caspersen Fellow in the History and Culture Ph.D. Program at Drew University, Madison, New Jersey. His area of concentration is book history and print culture in England during the modern period. He has published and presented on topics ranging from the history of book theft in libraries to the publishing practices of William Caxton. Prior to arriving at Drew, he earned a Masters in Library Science at Simmons College. In addition to being a Ph.D. candidate, he currently works in the Special Collections and Archives department at the Drew University Library as a student assistant.
EDITOR’S NOTE

I start most days with a brief reflection from Edward Hay’s A Pilgrim’s Almanac. Today, first thing, as I set out to write the “Editor’s Note” for this issue, I discovered today is The Feast of St. Vincent, the patron of wine growers, who died in 304 CE.

Tradition says that if the sun shines today there will be a good crop of grapes this year. It is mostly cloudy and cold here at the United Methodist Archives and History Center on the campus of Drew University, Madison New Jersey. Last night there was a dusting of snow. No matter. Somewhere across the widening, ever more global Methodist connexion, today, the sun is shining. This issue of Methodist History is proof—a very fine yield.

Ashley Boggan’s “A God Sent Moment: Methodism, Contraception and the Protection of the Methodist Family, 1870-1968,” is an important piece in the wake of the current Hobby Lobby controversy, not to mention the denomination’s continued wrestling with matters of human sexuality. Ashley offers a helpful, insightful survey of Methodism’s vulnerable and valuable journey, from fear and endangerment to understanding contraception’s role in enhancing healthy, intimate, home-building Christian families.

Brian Shetler’s “Prophet and Profit: John Wesley, Publishing and the Arminian Magazine,” offers a window into the development of Methodism’s early literary canon. Under its founder’s hands-on superintendence, Arminian Magazine would communicate the marrow of the Methodist message of universal redemption, readily available to preachers and the mass audience alike.

This issue also allowed space for word about the most recent additions to the vintage list of United Methodist Heritage Landmarks. Discover them, embrace them and be both informed and inspired by whom and for what they stand.

As if the above are not harvest enough, we conclude with Laurence Wood’s word of Russell Frazier’s True Christianity as more than a once-over of the dispensational soteriology of John Fletcher (1729-1785). The review is indeed a fine refresher on the understanding of divine revelation from the theological mind of one who Wesley once thought would be his successor.

Alfred T. Day III